

2020 Community Leader Philanthropy Award

Dr. Lloyd Brown and Dr. Curlane Jones-Brown

This dynamic couple have dedicated themselves to giving back to the WNY community. As professionals, they provide the utmost care to their patients and clients, and serve as mentors within their respective medical fields. Today we are privileged to recognize them for the myriad ways they give of themselves to the youth of our city.

Lloyd is the Chief of Staff at Kenmore Mercy Hospital and specializes in Emergency Medicine. He has been a leading practitioner in his field for over twenty years. Curlane is a top Psychiatrist in Buffalo and is the author of three books on youth in need, health empowerment, and outreach to young women. She has been in practice for over thirty years serving at ECMC, Bry-Lin, and the Rochester and Buffalo Psychiatric Centers.

True partners in service, Lloyd and Curlane have given their time, talent, and treasure to provide opportunities, education, and hope to young people living under the weight of poverty in our region. They have sponsored youth empowerment conferences and pageants celebrating the skills and achievements of students. They bought a former church on Hickory Street and opened the SENSES foundation which offers tutoring, mentoring, and other development programs for teens and young adults. Working to instill good values and decision making skills in the youth of today to become leaders of tomorrow, they have grown this initiative; it as an act of love and faith.

For their commitment to giving, and their work to lift up our youth, the NFJC proudly recognizes Dr. Lloyd Brown and Dr. Curlane Jones-Brown with the 2020 Community Leader Philanthropy Award.
